Thanksgiving is a time of reflection, gratitude, and, most importantly, fun and games with the entire family. One fun way to get the conversation flowing around the turkey-laden table is to engage in a fun thanksgiving game like “Thanksgiving would you rather.” It’s a great way to learn more about family members, have a few laughs, and make your Thanksgiving feast even more memorable.

How to Use the Questions

“Would you rather” questions are perfect conversation starters that can be tailored to any group, whether it be immediate family, extended family, or friends gathered around for a Thanksgiving celebration. They are simple: you just present two scenarios and each person has to choose which one they would prefer. These questions can range from silly questions with no wrong answers to tougher choices that really make you think.

When to Use the Thanksgiving Would You Rather Questions

The Thanksgiving would you rather game is a perfect activity for any downtime you have during the day. Whether it’s while the Thanksgiving food is being prepared, after enjoying the entire Thanksgiving meal, or while settling in for some NFL football game, these questions can be asked. It’s a great way to include the whole family in fun dinner conversations.
